

Individualized Learning for ESL Literacy Development

ESL ReadingSmart is an effective web-based program for English language learners in upper elementary through high school.

ESL ReadingSmart lessons contain the four language processes: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. The program offers individualized, content-based instruction to develop English language proficiency with an emphasis on literacy and academic language development.

Instructional Design

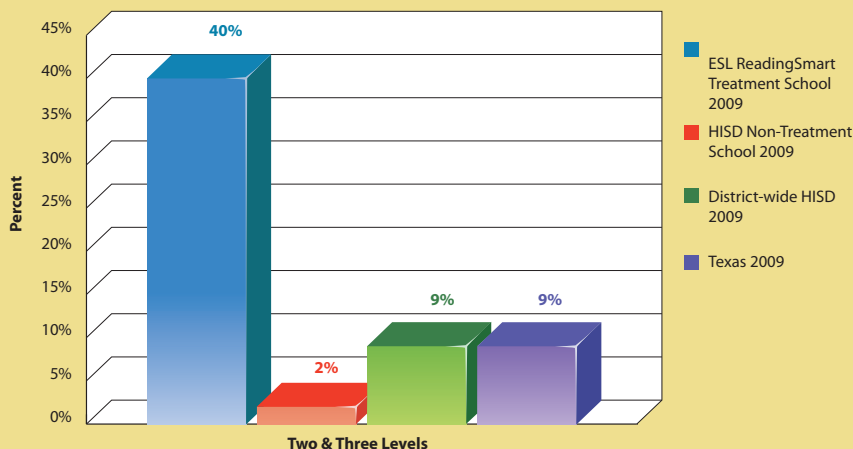

Teachers can implement ESL ReadingSmart either as a student-centered, stand-alone application, or as a learning environment that integrates online student work and classroom instruction.

ESL ReadingSmart provides a placement test that generates an individualized path for each student to follow. Alternatively, teachers can select a specific level for a class, and the system will offer the same instructional path to all of the students in the class.

Boost student academic achievement with ESL ReadingSmart

- Accelerate English language development through content-based instruction and the four language processes: listening, speaking, reading, and writing
- Develop English language proficiency with emphasis on literacy and academic language
- Track student progress and monitor specific vocabulary and reading skills
- Enrich learning objectives with lesson plans, web resources, and more
- Support WIDA, TESOL, and state ESL learning objectives

Student Component

The Student Component includes a section called Newcomers, as well as a four-level Lexiled® reading program based on multi-cultural, high-interest selections. The Newcomers section facilitates the introduction of basic vocabulary and sentence structure needed by beginning English language learners.

The reading program includes Lexiled® multi-cultural, multi-genre reading selections that incorporate vocabulary support, audio tracks, activities, and quizzes. The reading selections increase in complexity as students progress through the program.

Student Assessment Reports

The Student Assessment module offers teachers and administrators the ability to run individual, class, school, and district reports. Progress is measured in terms of Lexile® and grade level gains.
